

Cromocto, N. B.

January 27, 1953.

Dear Mrs. Locke.

I am writing to you in hope that you can give me some information concerning a friend of mine, by name of Norman Locke. He served in the English Navy during the last war. And while he was on leave during one of his trips to this side of the ocean, he became a very good friend of my husband and he spent his leave with my husband at his home here in Cromocto, New Brunswick.

On returning to his ship and going back to his home in Birmingham, England, he wrote my mother-in-law, saying that his Mother had died. That was the last word we have heard from him. Often in the years that have lapsed between that time and this, have we wondered what had happened to "Norman". So I am writing to you, as I found this address in some of my husband's navy things, and I wonder if you can give me any information concerning "Norman". He was a very dear fellow and we all enjoyed him. The couple of weeks he spent visiting us, and we do hope that we can contact him again and I would be very pleased if you could make that possible.

I am very sorry to say that I do not remember whose address this is. I remember Norman speaking of his "Mather" and of an "Aunt" of his. so I really do not know which of these people belong to this address. But I am writing, hoping that this letter will fall into the hands of some close relatives of his.

When I came upon this address just the other day, it brought back memories of Norman. and I couldn't help but write and try to find out where he is now. So here is hoping you can help me get in contact with him. I remain.

Yours sincerely,

Mrs. Douglas A. Miller.
